Letters to the Editor

All letters must be signed; anonymous letters will not be used.

I have wondered why Kate Smith has an hour every day when there are other programs so much better that are not even on TV.

Aurora, Ill. MRS. FRANK DARNELL

Why does Dennis James always say Mumbo-Jumbo when he is talking about Old Golds? What does he mean?

Mundelein, Ill. PAT GREETHAM

Ed. Note: Dennis refers to "medical claims" by other cigarette makers as so much talk, or "mumbo jumbo."

Is Dagmar married?

South Holland, Ill. MRS. FRANK VELDHIUS

Ed. Note: No.

We have formed a fan club for Bill Hayes who appears on "Your Show of Shows" every Saturday night . . . anyone interested in joining this club may write to me at 7211 Vincennes, Chicago 21.

Chicago, Ill. BECKY WOODFORD

I am really so tired of glamour! It is a wonderful treat to see a lovely young woman dressed simply on your TV set.

Kalamazoo, Mich. MRS. ARCHIE MARKILLIE

Why can't we have first-run pictures on the regular channels as well as on channel 2 which only preferred people may see? If they can be shown on 2 why not on others?

Crown Point, Ind. MRS. W. FELTON

Ed. Note: The current programs on channel 2 are in the experimental stage only, as authorized by the FCC. Only 300 persons view them at the present time. If approved, subscription-TV would be open to all.

I have reached a decision. The Thing is either a long television commercial or Jerry Lester's bean bag.

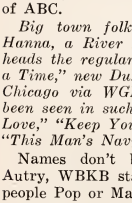
CHANNEL ONE

NEW YORK—Television and motion picture friends of Jack Benny are planning his birthday party which falls on St. Valentine's Day . . . The CBS comedian will be 39—again. . . . Critics do not expect Abbot and Costello to make appearances more than once every six or eight weeks . . . They're afraid they'll run out of material, like Olsen and Johnson . . .



PHIL

Manhattan scene: Morton Downey reminiscing to a reporter at rehearsals about his early days with Paul Whiteman . . . Downey made 20 Atlantic crossings on the S. S. Leviathan with Whiteman's shipboard band . . . Today Downey is a national figure in show business, as is Pops who is also a VP of ABC.

Big town folks are praising Phil Hanna, a River Forest, Ill., boy who heads the regular cast of "Once Upon a Time," new DuMont musical seen in Chicago via WGN-TV . . . Phil has been seen in such movies as "Without Love," "Keep Your Powder Dry," and "This Man's Navy."

Names don't bother cowboy Gene Autry, WBKB star . . . He just calls people Pop or Ma'am . . . First it was the cartoonist, then the comic strip artists. Now the movie people will finally break down and recognize TV. One big producer is planning to film the rise and fall of a television star. . . . It won't be about Imogene Coca. She's turned down two offers already to go to Hollywood . . . Philip Rapp is the author of the "Bickerson Family" skits you see on WGN-TV with Frances Langford and Lew Parker . . . Latest big money job is writing TV jingles. Got any catchy ones? Send them to New York . . . Watch for round-the-clock video shows when war production goes into full speed . . . Then your trouble with Jr. begins, trying to get him to sleep first, then to school the following AM . . . Sets in 1951 will be priced lower, that's our prediction and we'll stick with it . . . Monday morning Hopalong Cassidy and wife return from a South American trip . . . Hottest Canasta player in Manhattan is Molly Berg who writes and stars in the "Goldbergs."

Garry Moore was recalling his school days, saying that when he first went to college the English professor was also a banker and you couldn't borrow a phrase unless you had two endorsers . . . Says Vaughn Monroe: "a tongue twister is a series of words that get your tang all tongueled up."

ROBIN

Robin Chandler, a successful model herself, dispenses advice to hopefuls on her many appearances . . . Director of modeling agency and beauty editor of a daily paper, Robin is an inspiration to hundreds of Chicago girls who have written her for advice . . . Expected to bow soon on the network is Dione Lucas, now in Chicago for a cooking school . . . So that he can make time in the NBC television corridors between rehearsals, the cast of the "Bert Parks Show" recently gave Bertie a pair of rollers skates! . . . Victor Borge, who starts his own show Feb. 3, came to the United States with a brilliant reputation but scant English. He learned the language by spending long hours at the movie . . . Orchids to Victor M. Carter who recently presented a check to Ted Mack to purchase more than one million cigarettes for GIs in Korea . . . Henny Youngman can tell it over and over again, and we'll still laugh. It goes this way: "Milton Berle and other comics are all on TV, but I'm still trying to get a radio show."

Who knows Jerry Lester better than his high school teachers, Miss Melita Skillen and Mrs. Tecla Birk, both of Senn—here in Chicago.

Jerry Lester

"the bean bag king"

ONE of the few comedians happiest without a script is Chicagoan Jerry Lester, star of WNBQ's "Broadway Open House." We attempted to interview him via long-distance phone but Lester's busy schedule made it impossible so we called on his former school teacher, Miss Melita Skillen, dramatics instructor at Senn.

Fans of Lester have heard the Bean Bag King many times refer to Miss Skillen on the air, but few have had the pleasure of chatting with her about the perpetual-motion comic who barely missed being a professional ballet dancer instead.

Miss Skillen also introduced us to Mrs. Tecla Birk, another Senn teacher, who knew Jerry, and the two of them talked about his 1929 and 1930 days in school. They recalled seeing the young thespian do serious as well as humorous roles like the character of Messr. Beaucaire in "Molyneaux."

From the very beginning, they said, they felt Jerry was going to be an outstanding person. They knew he was going places—"or die young." Probably his best-remembered role was in "Charley's Aunt," in which he appeared with Brett Morrison and Hugh Marlowe.

Senn high school, we discovered, is the only high school in the city having a full-time dramatics course. It was in this class that Jerry Lester captured the admiration of Miss Skillen.

Miss Skillen told us that Jerry had a good record in all of his courses. She rated him superior in his dramatic ability, and certainly his talent in making people laugh. It was very easy to see that in Miss Skillen, Jerry Lester had a strong ally who was interested in his welfare.

That was true also of Mrs. Birk, who had a story to recall. "After a class upset one day, I kept Jerry to get a better understanding. He said his ambition was to be a comedian, and with considerable effort intended to go to the top."

Mrs. Birk confided that Jerry was so sure of himself that she believed at least one part of what he said. "Alright," she answered, "If that's your attitude, I'm willing to go along with you. When you say something funny we'll all laugh with you and enjoy it. . . . My sense of humor is as good as the average."

"But when it's not funny," Mrs. Birk recalled saying, "I'm certainly going to tell you, and we're not going to have this class upset."

The result was that Jerry Lester was no longer a problem at Senn and both students and teachers had fun with him.

Some years later, when Jerry played the Uptown theater in Chicago, he returned to Senn one afternoon and walked unannounced into the classroom dancing and kidding in typical Lester fashion. The class was at first stunned by his entrance, and then exploded. For about 10 minutes he kept up the line while Mrs. Birk prayed the principal would not show up to find an economics class turned into a vaudeville show.

"I would have liked seeing the dean walk in," Miss Skillen told us jokingly.

Only a few Sundays ago Jerry tossed off another salute to Miss Skillen when he and Burr Tillstrom appeared on the Colgate Comedy Hour. Tillstrom was also a student of Miss Skillen's, and has the same high regard for her as does Jerry.

Bean Bag Jerry Lester may never negotiate peace terms at the United Nations, but he is making America take down its hair and laugh. His performances on "Broadway Open House" have been called "fracturing," "stampeding" and "amazing," all of which bespeak of chaos.

Lester was born in Chicago February 16, 1910. After graduating from Senn he attended Northwestern university. His father, a music critic, gave young Lester a well-rounded musical training. Jerry studied ballet dancing with Marcel Berger and took voice lessons from Alexander Nakutin, famous as the singing coach of the opera star Tito Schipa.

BURNS & ALLEN

WACKY is the word for George Burns and Gracie Allen, WBKB stars featured on the cover of this week's TV Forecast Magazine. Most Chicagoans agree: they look and act the way they sound.

In radio, George Burns was more often known as the stooge, the straight-man who helped Gracie with her never-ending collection of jokes. Now, on television, George is a new man. With cigar in hand, he calmly opens and closes each new chapter in the lives of these uproariously funny CBS comedians, in a manner so disarming you cannot but help like this same couple that has entertained radio audiences for more than 17 years.

Grace Ethel Cecile Rosalie Allen (the lady's full moniker) was one of four daughters of Edward Allen, a song-and-dance man then booked in San Francisco. There is no evidence that her birth had any connection with the earthquake of that year.

By the time Gracie Allen was three and a half years old, she could talk so well she made her stage debut. She didn't make a career of it then, however, returning to school books until she was 14. Then, through with book learning, she went behind the footlights to hoof with her three older sisters.

Soon after, she lit out with the Larry Reilly Company as an Irish colleen, doing jigs and singing songs of Irish laughter. She developed a brogue she had difficulty shaking later. The colleen left the Reilly company over a disagreement over billing. That was at Hoboken, N. J., which is, she discovered, a short train or ferry distance from New York City. Weary of what seemed an insecure livelihood in the theatre, she joined a secretarial school to learn the secrets of shorthand and a typewriter.

It was while she was at school that a girl friend, Rena Arnold, persuaded Gracie to take a trip back to New Jersey to catch a vaudeville act playing at Union Hill. The act was a comedy routine, with song and dance, in which a male comedian was supported by a

A Columnist's Wife Looks at TV

By Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mabley

This week's column requires a line of explanation. No newspaperman is capable of writing a column or anything else until the last possible minutes before the final absolute deadline. This week's deadline found this particular columnist decorating the expectant papa's room at Henrotin hospital, and in no condition to write a column.

But a deadline is here. It calls for calm minds. Who is calmer than Mrs. M. She won't be doing anything for a few hours anyway.

The columnist's wife has sat by in silence for three long years, watching the good and the bad, keeping her peace while the old man sounded off about every show on television. She must have a few opinions of her own. Turns out she has. Here are some of them.

The Burns and Allen show isn't nearly so enjoyable now that it's on film. It's a good joke on the sponsor, though, because when Gracie holds up a can of their milk on the filmed show, you can't even recognize it.

The Lux Theater is one of the best dramatic shows. The Purple Doorknob in particular was good. Josephine Hull was excellent, and the girl who played with her did well. Pretty, too. You would have liked her. So many half-hour dramas are trite because of their shortness, but Lux does very well, considering the time taken out for commercials.

One of the best cooking shows is the one with Louise Leslie on WBKB the same time Kate Smith is on WNBQ. She's hefty enough so you feel she enjoys her own cooking. I also like the exercise show on WBKB in the morning. They tell you what you're doing, and why. It isn't too long. The radio exercise shows used to be on so long I got tired and gave up. The girl who does the exercise on WBKB is named Inky, and she has such a cute figure you hope you can get something like her.

I wonder how parents feel when their kids win dogs which are given away on several programs. How'd you like to have your kids trot home with a Great Dane pup?

The Garry Moore show in the afternoon is enjoyable mainly because it's short. Fifteen minutes is plenty for that kind of program. Kate Smith puts on a good show, but it's getting awfully commercial. Once a week they have a children's section. She tells a children's story while the camera watches the faces of 8 or 10 kids in the studio. Their expressions are wonderful.

It's a crime that they replaced Panhandle Pete and Jennifer three days a week with Gabby Hayes. There are so many stupid Western pictures on the air already, and the live shows are so much better. Between the mush-mouth way he talks and Howdy Doody's mangling of the language, you won't be able to understand kids, the way they like to imitate. We should have more children's shows with good enunciation.

I wish Stewart Granger would be on TV. Mmmmmmm.

Name Award Poll Winners Next Week

Winners of the second annual Awards Poll conducted by this magazine will be announced in next week's issue of TV Forecast. These are the favorite programs the public has voted the most outstanding during 1950. To these winners will go the annual trophy pictured on this page. This highly coveted award ranks with the motion picture industry's "Oscar." Be sure to get next week's copy of TV Forecast on sale at leading newsstands.

The daily program pages of this magazine will carry the complete listings for Channel 2, the Zenith experimental station conducting the FCC authorized experiment known as Phonevision.

Unless you are one of the 300 authorized viewers possessing the Zenith decoders, the picture you receive on Channel 2 will constantly "zigzag." Servicemen will not be able to correct this situation, so please do not call them for this purpose.

Viewers participating in the experiment will have the opportunity of seeing first-rate motion pictures, and these families will be charged a fee of $1.00 for each Phonevision program they elect to see during the test.

Just Like a Texan

A Texan, relates Lanny Ross, TV singer, was talking to his son. "I just heard you asking that man what state he was from," he said. "Now, my boy, I want you to remember this: If a man comes from Texas he'll tell you; and if he isn't from Texas, there's no need to embarrass him!"

TV SWAMI—Allen Harvey, WBKB announcer, portrays the mysterious Drana Badour of "Murder Before Midnight," seen Mondays thru Saturday. Drana interrupts his tale of violence to call a viewer with a question concerning a story up-to-date. Winners get a jackpot of prizes offered by the sponsor, Allied Motors.

Playing fairs in the Chicago district to earn money during summer vacations, Lester made his debut as a comedian when a torn ligament temporarily halted his ballet dancing. He had to talk—and talk he did, starting a career which earned him the title of the "Talking Comic." He ad libbed through a routine for ten curtain calls.

An audition with Gus Edwards one afternoon while Lester was still in college started him on his professional stage career that same night. Gus Edwards took one look at Lester's imitation of Ted Lewis and his tap dance routine, and Northwestern had lost a student.

Lester made his first NBC appearance as guest artist on the "Shell Chateau" with Al Jolson. In 1940 he was signed to appear on the Summer program which replaced the vacationing "Bob Hope Show." The following year he was featured regularly on NBC's "Kraft Music Hall." His unbroken chain of radio-comedy successes led right up to the "Jerry Lester Show" on another network.

Off the air, the former dancer has left patrons howling at the Copacabana and the Latin Quarter in New York; the Blackstone and the Chez Paree in Chicago; and Ciro's in Hollywood, to mention only a few night clubs.

Lester's frequent Broadway appearances have included star comedy roles in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," Vinton Freedly's "Jackpot," George Abbott's musical comedy, "Beat the Band," and Leonard Sillman's revue, "All in Fun."

When "Broadway Open House" is over at midnight, Lester boards the first possible train for Old Greenwich, Conn., where he is known as something of a country squire. His main preoccupations at his Connecticut home are his barbecue pit and his impressive collection of old United States coins.

Lester's greatest discovery is an amazing amazon known as Dagmar. The 23-year old beauty, whose 120 pounds and five-foot eight inch frame is topped by a mass of strawberry blonde hair, has just one order: "stay in camera range, that's all."

In real life, Dagmar is Jenny Lewis, a native of Huntington, W. Va., where she attended high school and business college. In 1944, after a career as a prize-winning tap-dancer as well as prize winning typist, Dagmar set out for New York and a career on the stage. She made one appearance at an audition and hasn't been out of work since. She landed a job with Olsen and Johnson's "Laffin Room Only" after only two months in New York.

In 1946 she toured USO camps and Army hospitals, entertaining the troops. She returned to the stage in 1948 with Bert Lahr in the hit musicale, "Burlesque."

A girl who intends to learn all she can about the business. Dagmar showed her astuteness when she turned down a movie contract on the grounds that she was too inexperienced at the time. She is a devotee of outdoor life and her favorite hobbies are boating and swimming. She is not married.

Jack Benny Returns Sunday

Penny-pinching Jack Benny, CBStar who prefers not-too-often appearances on television, returns Sunday for his second show on WBKB, channel 4. His program will be only one-half hour, preempting "This Is Show Business."

Brickhouse Speaker at Boss Night Fest

When the secretaries of Chicagoland treat their boss to a special dinner Monday night, Jan. 29, TV personality Jack Brickhouse will be on hand as master of ceremonies for the annual event. "Boss Night Dinner" will be held in the Tropical Room of the Sheraton hotel under the sponsorship of the Lake Shore chapter of the National Secretarys Association.

Clare H. Jennings, president, announced that Dr. Louis N. Ridenour, chief scientist for the U. S. Air Force and special assistant to the Secretary of Air, will be guest speaker.

Other special guests include Bernie Sellers, secretary to Jack Brickhouse, and co-star on "Chicago Calendar," weekday WGN-TV program, and Dorothy Bond, America's No. 1 cartoonist whose series are currently appearing in the Daily News.

Officers of the club arranging the event include Ruby W. Knox, vice president and social chairman; Elaine Suhr, recording secretary; Florence McNulty, corresponding secretary; and Nancy Kelley, treasurer.

Photos Roll In for Beauty Title

Photos of candidates for Miss Ski Nose of 1951 continue to roll into the offices of this magazine as Chicagoland girls compete for a new title.

Only a few weeks are left to enter Chicago's unique contest—the search for Miss Ski Nose of 1951—so hurry, and send your entry photos in to this magazine. If you're between 16 and 26, and possess a slightly upturned nose you qualify.

Miss Ski Nose may be your girl friend, neighbor or daughter. If she is chosen by a panel of judges she will be awarded a free week's stay for two at the glamorous Northernaire Hotel and Spa, Three Lakes, Wis., a year-round resort for many celebrities of video and screen fame.

The Northernaire will crown Miss Ski Nose and let her reign over winter sports, such as bobsledding, skating, skiing, snowshoeing, and skijoring. For a real thrill she'll ride through the woods of Three Lakes, pulled by a husky team of Alaskan sled dogs. Northernaire will also extend their facilities of a tropical pool, steam baths, ultra-violet ray equipment, masseurs, and exercycles.

Judges include Jimmy Savage, Irv Kupcinet, Tony Weitzel, Al Turner and Bob Kubicek. They will judge semi-finalists Feb. 12 on WGN-TV, channel 9, and climax the show by naming Miss Ski Nose.

New Wilt—Gehrmann Race Sparks Millrose Track Meet

Highlighted in the 1951 Millrose track meet, telecast by WGN-TV from Madison Square Garden, Jan. 27, will be the famous and controversial Wanamaker mile starring Don Gehrmann and Fred Wilt.

Other notable events in the '51 track opener to watch will be Harrison Dillard and Jim Gherdes in high hurdles; Don Laz and Lunberg of Sweden in the pole vault; Curtiss Stone and Richard Shea in the Wanamaker two mile race, plus every college relay team of note in the East.

female "straight" assistant. The girl, Billy Lorraine, was leaving the act, and Gracie had a chance to replace her. She went backstage, met the man and won the job. The man, of course, was George Burns.

Burns, too, had been in show business since he was a child. Born Nathan Birnbaum in New York January 20, 1896, he organized, while under ten years of age, a group of child singers known as the Peewee Quartet. They sang in taverns and saloons, and passed a hat. Gus Edwards took over the act, but Burns took his changing voice to strike out alone. Before he was out of adolescence, he had been a trick roller skater, a dancing teacher and a vaudeville comedian of some repute.

The new act of Burns and Allen started, as did the old act of Burns and Lorraine, with George Burns as the funny man. They played three shows, for which they got $15 and something infinitely more important. George found that Gracie got more laughs than he did. Being no dope, George immediately switched the act and made Gracie the comedian. Today George is probably the most famous straight man on radio. Privately, he is a sharp wit who more than holds his own in such fast company as Jack Benny and Groucho Marx.

Burns and Allen played the vaudeville circuit for three years, during which time George became convinced that he wanted Gracie for a life partner as well as a stage partner. He courted her, but was spurned. Gracie just couldn't make up her mind. On Christmas Day, 1925, he gave her ten days to make up her mind. She waited nine days and then said yes. They were married in Cleveland on Jan. 7, 1926. "I owed Gracie $20," George wisecracks, "so we decided to take a gamble."

Jack Benny, playing in San Francisco, thought he would rib his newlywed friends. He telephoned the Burnses at 3 AM on their wedding night. Getting an answer from a man, Benny asked "Hello? George?" A gruff voice answered "Send up two orders of ham and eggs," and the phone was slammed down. Burns knew how to take care of practical jokers.

It was in 1933 that Gracie panicked the nation by a search for her brother. Not only did she continue the gag on her own show, but she popped up with it on other programs. Her real brother, a San Francisco accountant, was forced to go into hiding until the gag ran its course. Not until 1942 did Burns and Allen appear as a married couple on the air.

Gracie has made a smart thing of acting dumb. She has been versatile and clever enough to have confounded the experts in appearances on "Information Please," to have covered the political conventions of 1944, to write syndicated articles, and to paint surrealistic pictures. She has appeared in many motion pictures, some of them without George. Their first movie was "Big Broadcast of 1932."

The two moved to Hollywood in 1934, and bought a twelve-room home of their own in Beverly Hills. The modest house does have a swimming pool. They have two adopted children, Sandra Jean, born in July 1934, and Ronald John, born a year later.

Gracie is five feet tall; George is five feet nine inches. She calls him Nate. and he calls her Googie. Her nickname came from an incident many years ago when she asked him to say something funny.

"Googie, googie," George said.

Gracie laughed, and has been Googie to George ever since.

"I thought you said we were going to see some cheese cake."

Boudreau (No. 5) returns to cheering dug-out after smashing another homer.

Lou's Winter: Work, Train, Watch KFO

By GEOFFREY HUNTER

It is always exceedingly refreshing to chat with a young fellow from Harvey, Ill., who has been about as successful in the sports world as the law allows. We are, of course referring to Lou Boudreau, ex-manager of the Cleveland Indians.

A heavy favorite of Chicagoans watching Lou in action over WGN-TV, last summer, fans hoped Lou would pitch his wares for the Sox in '51 but Frank Lane never mentioned a figure that would be considered seriously by Boudreau . . . Why did Lou pick the Boston Red Sox?

Without hesitation Lou said, "They are the greatest organization in baseball. Mr. Yawkey, Joe Cronin and Mr. Collins (Eddie) are wonderful people. I've known them all my baseball life and I've always had a great deal of admiration for them and their way of doing things. They are big people who do things the right way.

"And don't forget, I came up from Buffalo in 1939 where my manager was Steve O'Neil, a baseball man who certainly has my respect and that of everyone with whom he comes in contact."

These days the Boudreau family is enjoying itself in the Harvey home Lou bought about five years ago. Della, his wife, has mastered the art of broiling steaks and making spaghetti, according to Lou. Barbara, 11, and Sharon, 7, are busily at work growing into young ladies and Louis, Jr., 4, is rapidly becoming interested in his daddy's occupation. "I don't know if he can hit yet," says Boudreau, "but he'd better."

Lou spends his time keeping in shape at Thornton high school by working out with Tom Nisbet's basketball squad. He also has one of those rugged after-dinner speaking schedules but primarily, he is enjoying the relaxation so appreciated by ballplayers after a rough major league season.

What does he think about the Red Sox' acquiring Scarborough and Wight from the White Sox? "Good deal! I always have had trouble with those two and it's nice to know they're on our side now. The Red Sox gave up a good outfielder in Zarilla but, it's like anything else, you have to give to get."

Is it a relief being a player instead of player-manager?

"Definitely. Now I won't lie awake at night rotating my pitchers. I won't have to fungo fly balls all over the outfield to keep them in shape, either. I can take my turn at bat and in the field and concentrate on helping the club win the pennant."

"Television? Absolutely wonderful! Which reminds me, it's time for Kukla, Fran and Ollie. We never miss it!"

WENR-TV FEATURE:

Chicago's Massro Whirls To Fame In Derby

By ED PAZDUR

You either like it or you don't. There's no in between. That's the customary reaction of TViewers watching the Roller Derby every week over WENR-TV. If you like it, you'll soon find yourself rooting for Chicago's contribution to Roller Derby competition — Russ Massro, Coach of the Chicago Westerners. Russ, like most kids today, began as a Roller Derby fan, watching his idol Billy Bogash of the New York Chiefs.

An alumnus of Chicago's Lake View high school, Massro came up the hard way. He started street skating when he was eight years old in front of his family's home at 1137 Addison street. As he grew older, he branched out from the neighborhood sidewalk race campaigns into the roller rinks around the windy city and later became the first alumnus of the Uptown Arcadia Speed Club to enter the Roller Derby.

"I often think of how I used to look at the great Bogash whirling around the track at the Chicago Coliseum. Now here I am matching strides with him on the track and strategy off the track. He's sure a tough guy to beat," said Russ.

Massro studied the printing trade at Lakeview, working with his grandfather as apprentice printer but the skating urge was in his blood. "I tried out three times in Chicago, then in Milwaukee, and finally in Kansas City," recalled Russ. "They kept turning me down. When the Derby would move on, I'd be in the next city before they got there. Finally, they got tired of my pestering and I got a job on the construction crew. Later I became the skate boy. That was heaven to me."

A "skate boy" is required to do a multitude of jobs. They sweep out the quarters, pick up towels, and bring coffee for the wheelers. The pay isn't much, but they get the satisfaction from seeing a lot of Derby skating from the inside of the track. Massro watched intently, asked questions, and took skating tips in earnest. Everyday, whenever he could get someone to skate with him, he'd practice on the banked saucer-like track.

He learned how to jump over chairs, how to block and repel blocks. Soon he mastered the art of relaxing when he was spilled—a trick so essential in avoiding serious injuries. Lanky and awkward at first, Russ was taken under the wing of another Chicago North Sider currently coaching Brooklyn, Ken Monte. Another famous skater to take an interest in the ambitious kid's training was Billy Bogash. With the combined talents of Monte and Bogash as tutors, Massro took his instructions seriously and began to develop rapidly, but not without the usual mishaps.

He was such a stumbler around the masonite track that he actually became a menace to welfare of other training skaters. It was during such a practice drill that he knocked out four of Mary Lou Palermo's front teeth.

"I fell down in Houston, she and the rest of the pack piled up over me," said Russ. "That's when she had her teeth knocked out. I was to blame, all right."

Mary Lou was forgiving, however, and even rates Russ as one of her very best friends . . . Three months later, Massro got his big chance when he was summoned to skate in Milwaukee.

Time and again he crashed and the pack came roaring and tumbling into him. It was his proclivity of falling so often, generally at the wrong times, that gave him the name "Rubber Legs." It required two years to wear off that brand. Despite his spills, he managed to escape serious injuries. Although his spills were damaging to the opponents, they were equally as damaging to his team mates . . . "I know of no man who hurt so many other people, accidentally, and hurt himself so slightly," said Bogash . . . To date, Massro has suffered four brain concussions—all from hitting the rail—and a broken wrist.

The whirlwind sport was born on a table linen in 1935 at Rickett's North Side restaurant in Chicago. Sired by Leo A. Seltzer, the Roller Derby finally hit big league stride as America's fifth major sport last year.

The Derby is considered the roughest of all sports for women, yet, the girl skaters seem to take physical punishment in better stride than most men. They compete equally with men, although not against each other, on the same physically dangerous level. In the Roller Derby, Seltzer sees a panacea for broken homes; a shock treatment for neurotics or hypochondriacs; crowd thrills by the wholesale and a whale of a game that calls for brains, brawn and guts with teams of men and women racing around a dangerously banked track at break neck speeds. Just tune in WENR-TV some Thursday evening and see for yourself.

A Tiger On The Run
—Joe Marsh

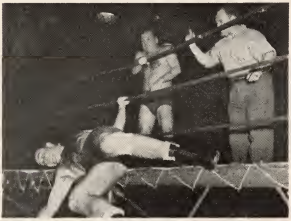
"Tiger Joe" Marsh, a rugged wrestler of some stature, visited Chicago long enough to spend a few days with friends and to appear in a match against Paul Martin at Rainbo (WENR-TV, Wed.). The life of a wrestler is somewhat glamorous, but largely a lonesome one, full of constant travel and dickering with promoters for better bookings.

Typical among leading grapplers is "Tiger Joe." A Chicagoan, "Tiger" has wrestled professionally for 24 years, served in the Navy during the last war, and can currently be seen in his second movie as a tough Bos'n in "Panic In The Streets."

Upon arrival at Rainbo Arena, "Tiger" gets pre-fight examination by Dr. T. R. Hinchion, examining physician.

Passing physical easily, "Tiger" returns to dressing room and is helped into new $1,000 robe by brother Tony. (Background) Promoter Fabiani talks to Ruffy Silverstein (seated left).

Three fans, followed by more later, stop "Tiger" on his way toward ring for autographs. "Kids are swell that way," he commented.



After ten minutes of loud groans and louder grunts, "Tiger" manages to heave Martin out of ring (almost striking Wayne Griffin describing match over WENR-TV) for easy win.

Returning to dressing room, "Tiger" showers, packs, and makes a brief stop at box office on his way out to collect pay. From Rainbo, he rushed to make the next train for Columbus, Ohio where he was booked for another match.

Jimmy Powers Opens New Sports Show Over WGN-TV

Interviews with famous stars from the world of sports are featured in the new Jimmy Powers show, "Powerhouse Of Sports News," 11:15 to 11:30 p.m., Sundays, over WGN-TV.

JIMMY

A fast moving, provocative program, Jim covers national and local sports events; presents timely sports editorials and guest stars representing every field of sports from track to wrestling.

Powers, a nationally known sports editor, conducts a sports column read daily by over two million readers. He was recently voted as America's outstanding television sportscaster in a nationwide poll conducted among radio and television editors in 63 cities.

EDYTHE ADAMS — winner of the first national Miss US Television contest conducted last summer on WGN-TV, pays a visit to Paul Fogarty of "Your Figure Ladies" program seen on channel 9. Edythe got a few tips from Paul on how to keep her lovely figure.

Faces and Places in Chicago

Lakeside Green is the newest lounge in town to captivate cafe-goers . . . It's located in the Stephens hotel and is bound to intrigue you. One of the cleverest bits to start conversation is the unusual mobile found on each table. It was designed by Joseph Le-Violette, young Chicago artist . . . When Red Skelton was in town for a recent theater appearance, he couldn't help visiting the College Inn Porterhouse . . . the Sherman Indians bestowed upon him the title of Chief Laughing Boy . . . Red promises us he'll make his video debut Oct. 1st, possibly on color! . . . In the meantime he can be seen in his latest film, "Watch the Birdie" . . . Enjoyed seeing Faye Emerson on her visit to Chicago for the "More Bounce to the Ounce" convention. We table-chatted with her in the Parade Room of the Ambassador East while hubby Skitch Henderson chaperoned . . . In answer to the question "how many high-necked blouses do you have in your wardrobe?" the charming and disarming Faye replied: "More than 60! Most of them, however, are not blouses. I use scarves, folding them like a diaper, and pinning them behind the neck. With a a suit they're so practical . . ." More TV stars are expected at the Chez Paree—Martin & Lewis, Jimmy Durante, and Danny Thomas . . . A radio show that should be on video is the Mike Wallace-Buff Cobb opus.

The Last Word

DEAR BOSS:

Probably something is wrong with me . . . I watched Lillie Palmer and she failed to send me into raptures, as we were assured by the advanced fanfare. If anything, she made me nervous, and the only thing that seems to relieve me of the situation is to get it off my chest.

Perhaps it was because I kept thinking about her early British films which we saw at recreation centers in England during World War II. I cannot forget her boring role in "The Gentle Sex," which will probably be sold to some used-car dealer here for television and all of us will have to suffer.

Frankly Lilli may be sending them in New York, but this is one boy who would rather play Canasta with his mother-in-law than burn a good tube on her show.

Has anyone thought of saying a nice thing about a sweet young creature named "Dagmar." I'm not referring to the hunk of statuary that adorns the stage of "Broadway Open House." The Dagmar that is welcome in my parlour is the tiny tot seen each Friday night on channel four in "Mama." She's Robin Morgan, and only eight years old.

Watched "One Man's Family" the other Saturday. At last the author came up with a solution to getting rid of TV characters in soap operas: kill 'em off! If we could be guaranteed once a week someone would get the axe, it wouldn't be long before the Barbour family would be a thing of the past.

Got your memo that Milton Berle's brother is a disc-jockey on Hollywood TV. Now I'm not in any particular rush about that coaxial cable joining us with the glittah-city.

Am thinking of trying out for Tony Weitzel's amateur show. Think I have a chance playing the spoons?
